COUNTY TRUSTEES MEET AT GORE SPRINGS

Meeting Held at Gore Springs Consolidated School Last Friday—Excellent and Appetizing Refreshments Served on Grounds—Parent-Teachers Association Formed.

The trustees of the various schools of the County, composing the trustees association of Grenada County held their first quarterly meeting at Gore Springs Consolidated School on Friday, September 29. They began to arrive early in the morning and found the teachers and pupils hard at work, but with plenty of time and welcome to receive them. After visiting the class rooms and observing the work carried on there, the trustees assembled in the main auditorium for a short business session.

The Principal in a very gracious manner welcomed the trustees and visitors and then turned the meeting over to Mr. Mitchell, President of the association. Many important details were brought up and discussed. Mr. McKibben outlined the program for "Better School Week" and made dates and arrangements for speakers for each school in the County, after which the meeting adjourned for dinner.

The good ladies of the community had prepared delicious refreshments which they served to the hungry crowd in the nearby grove. Most of the trustees had come from a distance, some walking, some in automobiles, etc., and they did full justice to the dainties set before them.

At one o'clock the crowd assembled again in the auditorium, and listened very attentively to one of the best lectures of the year, Supt. [illegible] Rundle of Grenada High School, [illegible] addressing the [illegible] always full of enthusiasm and school "pep" and never more so than on this occasion. At the close of this address, Mrs. Gerard, President of the P. T. A., of Grenada made a short talk to the Gore Springs people, expressing the work and plans of the association for a better school spirit in the community, or town. Then Mrs. Calhoun, County organizer of the P. T. A. of Grenada County, called the house to order and proceeded to organize a P. T. A. for Gore Springs community. The people heartily responded with Mrs. Guy Fite as Secretary and Treasurer. Plans were made for monthly meetings, and a good year's work for P. T. A. was assured.

The exercise closed with a match game of basketball between the 1st and 2nd girls' team.

DIES AT THE THRESHOLD OF WOMANHOOD

Miss Ruth Atkinson, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam E. Atkinson of near Holcomb, died Sunday and her remains were laid to rest in the Sparta church burying ground on Monday. The funeral services were conducted by Dr. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada College, who knew her as a student and who spoke those words of comfort that only a man of God can.

Miss Atkinson had been ill seven weeks of typhoid fever. A valiant fight was made against the insidious disease, but in spite of medical skill, careful nursing and patient care, this lovely young woman was transplanted to the life beyond.

She was the light and the sunshine of her home. She was gentle and thoughtful of father and mother and of all who had the good fortune to come within the radius of her influence.

The going away to the other world of loved ones and friends is always sad, and there is something doubly sad when a beautiful and lovely girl is taken as she enters the threshold of womanhood. Like the beautiful flower which is nourished and cheered by the dew at night time, and whose petals are kissed by the rays of the morning sun, yet fate cuts it down before noon time, so as in this case, a beautiful life is reaped in the very dew of its morning.

When a mere child, she had taken Jesus to be her Savior and had united with the Methodist church.

To the sorrowing father and mother and other loved ones, The Sentinel tenders sympathy.

WOMAN'S CLUB MET TUESDAY.

The Woman's Club, a very enthusiastic and representative body of women, met in regular session in the Grenada Bank building on Tuesday afternoon, October 3. Miss Susie V. Powell, the speaker for the occasion, was appropriately introduced by Miss Kate Lee. Miss Powell is a forceful and interesting woman of whom the state is justly proud. We are glad to have her support in our efforts and desire to express our appreciation of same. We are glad to know the out-of-town women who were with us on this occasion, Mesdames Cox, Talbert, Clarence James and Guy James. Our next meeting will be the first Wednesday in November at 4 o'clock in the Grenada Bank buliding. We have an interesting program and hope to have a large body of the representative women of our county join and enjoy this program with us.

Mrs. J. P. Broadstreet, Chairman,
Mrs. N. J. Carothers, Secretary.

FARM BUREAU FEDERATION TO MARKET COTTON

Organization To Be Formed Similar To Others. Means Better Prices For Cotton. Plan Endorsed By Bankers.

Jackson, Miss.—In line with its original plans and in keeping with its promises, the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation is preparing to provide a better, more efficient, and more profitable market for the cotton produced by the Mississippi farmers by setting up the Mississippi Farm Bureau Cotton Association, an organization of farmers, which will put into operation such a marketing system.

A statement to this effect was made recently by C. L. Neill, president of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation in which statement he makes it clear that the Mississippi Farm Bureau in setting up this cotton marketing organization is neither blazing a new trail nor setting a precedent. It is following the example of more than 150,000 farmers of Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Arkansas, Alabama, and the Mississippi Delta, who have already signed up approximately 2,500,000 bales.

Better Prices.

Continuing, Mr. Neill states that only Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona, and the Mississippi Delta were organized in time to handle the crop of 1921, and that through their organizations these farmers received from $10 to $15 per bale more for their cotton than was paid to farmers outside of the association.

Reviewing co-operative marketing Mr. Neill states further that there is not a single new principle involved. The co-operative idea has been a demonstrated success not only in Europe, but in America, and especially in California, where the fruit and nut growers several years ago applied co-operative marketing to the sale of their products and have since become the most prosperous farmers in America.

Bankers Approve Farm Bureau Cotton Association.

An important feature of the cotton marketing plan is that it has met with much favor on the part of the bankers wherever it has been put into operation.

The California bankers regard co-operative marketing as the only practical method for the farmers to use in selling their products. Among the bankers of Texas, Oklahoma, Alabama and other states the Farm Bureau cotton marketing plan has met with equal favor, because it provides a better collateral, enabling the bankers to make more attractive loans on a basis which is, on the other hand, more favorable to the farmers.

For Mississippi the proposition is to sign 200,000 bales by December 23, 1922. When this is done the Mississippi Farm Bureau Cotton Association will incorporated and its board of directors will employ trained managers to take charge, and immediately the association will become a big business organization, intelligently and efficiently performing the duties for which it was organized.

Another very important fact in connection with the plan is that it has the endorsement of the United States Department of Agriculture, and will have the active support of the Mississippi Extension Service, including all its members, from Director R. S. Wilson on down. The Farm Bureau plan has no connection with any other, and will be strictly a non-capital stock, and non-profit organization of cotton itself, for the more profitable marketing of cotton.

POLO MEET AT GRENADA.

SENATOR PAT HARRISON TO SPEAK IN GRENADA OCT. 12

Grenada Selected as One Of The Few Places Where He Will Speak Before Going into The Doubtful States. Senator Harrison a National Figure And One of the Headline Speakers on Democratic National Program. Grenada Should and Will Give Him a Most Cordial Greeting. Many Expected From Adjoining Counties.

Senator Pat Harrison will make an address in Grenada on the political issues of the day and the conditions brought about throughout the country by the mismanagement and petty politics of the Republican party, on Thursday, October 12, at 2:00 o'clock.

It is quite a compliment the distinguished Senator pays Grenada to make it one of the few places in the State in which he will make a speech between now and November election, and Grenada and Grenada County feels highly honored on having him here.

Senator Harrison is one of the headline speakers on the program of the Democratic National Committee to be sent into the doubtful states of the North and West. He is generally regarded as being one of the ablest and most convincing campaigners in the United States. He will visit three or four of the leading places in Mississippi before going out to unlimber on Republican rottenness.

He has been designated by his Democratic colleagues in the Senate to sit and to remind the Republicans of the Senate that the eyes of the Democratic party and the Nation are upon what they do, and especially upon their many blunders. Truly is Senator Harrison a thorn in the flesh of the Republican members of the United States Senate. He has been figuratively skinning them almost every day, but has been so perfectly elegant in the manner in which he has done the skinning, that the Republicans have felt like shouting whenever he takes his seat after having made a speech. It is said that there is no man in the Senate with more personal friends than Mr. Harrison.

Mississippi is indeed proud of him and more and more does the idea become fixed in the minds of all the people that "no mistake" was made when he was elected Senator.

Everybody of course is invited to hear Mr. Harrison, and those who come may promise themselves one of the richest political speeches they have heard for many a day.

BURT-McLEOD.

A most beautiful autumn wedding was solemnized at the First Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Frances McLeod became the bride of Mr. Clarene Burt, Rev. J. R. Cunningham officiating. The church was appropriately decorated in autumn leaves and golden rods with large baskets of yellow daisies and ferns on either side of the altar. The music program began with Miss Lorah Dill singing "Until" most sweetly, with Mrs. H. G. Talbert accompanying at the organ. Miss Kleiser rendered most beautifully a violin solo, by Fritz Kreisler, after which Mrs. F. S. Hill sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" in her usual charming voice, accompanied by Miss Kleiser on the violin. At the opening strains of the wedding march the procession lead by the ushers: Messrs. Roy Burt, John Pressgrove, Carl Laney and A. J. Broome, who were followed by the bride's maids. Miss Elise McLeod, sister of the bride, and Miss Martha Buffaloe, cousin of the bride, each wearing handsome gowns of brown silk lace over tangerine satin, with brown satin slippers and picture hats to match, carrying arm bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. Next came the maid of honor, Miss Marjorie Burt, sister of the groom, who was gowned in handsome afternoon dress of brown lace over cloth of gold with brown brocaded slippers and hat to match carrying arm bouquets of valley chrysanthensms. She was met by the groomsman, Mr. Donald McLeod, brother of the bride, who came down the opposite aisle to the altar. The dainty little flower girls little Misses Eleanor Lickfold and Nancy Nelson Granberry, in frocks of yellow organdie, preceded the bride, carrying tiny baskets and scattering rose petals in her pathway. As the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march became softer and sweeter, the bride on the arm of her father, came down the aisle and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. Albert Kerr Burt, brother of the groom. The bride was handsomely attired in a brown suit of Polair cloth with beaver trimmings, and small hat trimmed in coque feathers, with other accessories to match.

The impressive marriage service began with a fervent prayer by the minister and the ring ceremony followed by the benediction.

Immediately after the ceremony, the bridal pair left for Chicago for their honeymoon after which they will be at home to their friends in Grenada.

Mr. Burt is the son of Mrs. B. K. Burt, of Oakland. He has been in Grenada for a number of years and has come to be regarded by all who know him as a young man of sterling character and unusual ability. He holds a responsible position with the Illinois Central Railroad Co., and is held in the highest esteem by his employers.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McLeod. She is a most gracious and charming young woman, possessing a thorough knowledge of the arts which admirably fit her for the duties and responsibilities she has assumed.

The Sentinel tenders congratulations and best wishes to the happy couple.

Monday night, a delightful gathering took place at the residence of Mrs. W. A. McLeod in honor of the bride-elect, Miss Frances McLeod, and her bridal party. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. On the arrival of the bridal party and a few intimate friends delightful punch was served. Miss Daisy Leigh Roane, in a lovely gown of yellow georgette crepe, and Miss Mary Stevens looking equally lovely in a gown of pink crepe, presided over the punch bowl. After partaking freely of the delightful beverage, the guests repaired to the dining room, where pink gown never looked lovelier. Much ers, made the room like fairyland. In the center of a large table draped with real lace and tulle, stood a handsome wedding cake beautifully decorated and ornamented with a tiny doll bride and groom. A large white bell hung from the ceiling and under this, at the head of the table stood the bride and groom elect. The former in a handsome beaded crepe, coral pink gown, never looked lovlier. Much merriment was afforded the young people by the cutting of the wedding cake the bride cutting the ring. The button fell to the lot of Mr. Pressgrove, the thimble to Miss Willalah Moore and the dime, to Miss Martha Buffaloe.

The delightful refreshments, cake and ice cream in pink and white, carried out the color scheme. Tiny slippers, filled with rice adorned the plates. The guests took advantage of this to pelt the defenseless bride and groom elect. Showers of good wishes followed for the happy pair, who have a host of friends and admirers. Some time before leaving was spent in admiring the numerous pieces of cut glass, silver and other costly and beautiful gifts attesting the love and esteem in which the young couple are held.

WHO WOULD BE INTERESTED IN LOANING SOME CHEAP MONEY?

The Sentinel feels sure that everybody in Grenada knows what a demand there is here for homes. This paper also ventures that there will be few to question the statement that if there were residences, 25 new families would be here within 90 days. Hence, the inquiry, who has some money that they would be willing to loan cheap to aid in building an apartment house or some residences? This paper knows the men ready to build the apartment house.

CHICAGO GRAND OPERA QUARTET AT GRENADA COLLEGE

Announcement is being made in this week's issue of The Sentinel of the appearance in Grenada on Monday evening, October 9, of the Chicago Grand Opera Quartet at Grenada College. The College authorities feel that they are unusually fortunate in securing this attraction at all and especially do they feel that they are fortunate in presenting the quartet to the public at such a low admission charge.

The members of the Chicago Grand Opera Quartet, Irene Jonani, Barbara Wait, Jerome Uhl and Ralph Errolle, are internationally known. Their voices, individually beautiful, blend with absolute perfecton in the great quartets from the operas. The program represents a selection of the finest quartets, trios and duets, as well as individual solos from opera, and in addition, a number of beautiful American and English songs by the best known composers.

BILBO TO BURCH.

Dear Luther: Hell's to pay and no
water handy,
Spill'd the beans and dropt the candy;
No use for us to try it again,
With John R. Tally and "Toothless
Ben."
Preachin' to make the people wise
To our little tricks and funny guys.

Then there's Webb Venable and
Judge Lee Crum
And Harding Brooks has been talking some,
And all the best talent of the state
Is the cause of James K. running late;
So we as well take out and rest a spell,
For the Vardaman faction has gone to hell.

P. S.: I am just a common red neck
Living 'way out on Quiver;
If Bilbo is ever around,
I hope he'll drop in—
I mean drop in the river.

MANY HANDSOME FLOATS PLANNED FOR PARADE

Floral Parade Opening Day Of Fair Promises to Eclipse All Previous Displays—Business Houses to Enter.

The Harvest and Trade Parade Committee consisting of W. G. Nohl, Chairman; J. H. Neely and A. J. McCaslin, are busy this week soliciting among the business men and manufacturing plants to participate in the greatest parade ever pulled off at the North Mississippi Fair, Grenada, Monday afternoon, October 23rd, with Floats and trimming up their cars, as well as decorating their places of business and also by having flags hoisted in arder to make a showing and floating during the time of the Fair. The committee has found mostly all the business men, ladies as well as the manufacturers, 100 per cent co-operative with the movement of the Fair—with very few exceptions who failed to be progressive.

Any merchant whom the committee has missed or those who have changed their minds in order to participate in the parade will please call up any of the members of the committee, who will list them.

OTHERS MAY ANNOUNCE

Other Candidates For Governorship May Enter Field.

The more thoughtful people of Mississippi, regardless of any real or imaginary factional lines, would be glad that it were possible for the state to move along at least for a few years without the turmoil incident to a state election. Nevertheless the fact cannot be overlooked that the people stand at the threshold of another state election which will involve the choosing of almost every officer, outside of members of the judiciary, from constable up to governor. It is not an infrequent thing to hear it said: "Mississippi has too much politics and too little construction or business in her politics."

It is a common thing to hear it stated these days that "the ladies are going to fill some of the state offices, and they ought to." General acquiescence is usually made to this statement, and the office of treasurer is the one which it is generally thought some lady will be the successful contestant for.

Naturally there is a deal of speculation as to the final entries in the race for governor. Many seem to believe that the next governor has not yet announced, and among those whose names are being associated with the contest are Ben Humphreys of Greenville and Hon. Marion Reily of Lauderdale County. Your correspondent saw a letter from Mr. Humphreys a few days ago in which he stated that he would not be a candidate.

In this section Mr. Reily has many warm admirers and personal friends who are insisting that he become a candidate. Mr. Reily made the race against Bilbo in 1915, when Bilboism was at high tide, and there are thousands over the state who got to know him in that memorable struggle who have never ceased to talk "Reily for governor." In that contest many assert that Reily was the victim of as much slander and blackmail as was Hubert Stephens in the recent senatorial race. While Mr. Reily has been in retirement since he ran for governor, he has not failed to take an active interest in the success of others. His friends claim for him that he has been "no fence sitter." He was on the stump for Pat Harrison in 1918 and campaigned for Oscar Johnston between the two primaries and took the stump for Venable when Ross Collins defeated him on false issues two years ago. It is claimed for Reily that he has made a success of his own affairs and that he is a campaigner of the Pat Harrison and Earl Brewer type.

Thoughtful people realize that the character of a state's chief executive is a sort of barometer or gauge by which outsiders measure the hope, aspirations and business possibilities of the people within a state. Hence it is that there is a well defined sentiment that a man should be chosen governor who is capable of leading his people to better things and whose character and ability will furnish assurance to outsiders hunting homes of a stable, common sense and business-like administration. "More of business leadership and less of political peddling" seems destined to be one of the slogans in the coming state campaign.

Regardless of whether Mr. Reily runs or not, it seems certain that Mississippi is going to profit by some of her past experiences and that a governor will be elected whose administration will invite more people to make this state their home. (The above appeared in the Commercial Appeal September 28th.)

YANKEE PEDDLER ON MIRRORS.

A notion seller was offering a Yankee clock, finely varnished and colored, with a looking-glass in front, to a lady not remarkable for her personal beauty. "Why it is beautiful," said the vender, "Beautiful, indeed! A look at it almost frightens me," said the lady. "Then, marm," said Jonathan, "I think you had better take one that hain't got no looking-glass."

SUPERVISOBS ORDERED TO INCREASE ASSESSMENTS

State Tax Commission Gives Ukase to Increase Assessment of Automobiles of Grenada County Twenty-Five Per Cent. 401 Autos in The County.

That department of the State government which works on the plan of the Ex-Kaiser of Germany, has issued a ukase to the board of supervisors of Grenada County that the automobile assessment of Grenada County must be raised 25 per cent, hence the publication of the notice which is contained in this issue of The Sentinel that the supervisors will meet at the court house in Grenada on Tuesday October 10, next to cary out the Kaiser-like order.

The records show that there are 401 automobiles on the assessment rolls and that they are assessed at $77,540, an increase of 25 per cent will make the total automobile assessment, $96,925. This paper doubts seriously that if the automobiles were put on the market that they would bring what they are now assessed at. But big appropriations and extravagant expenditures call for going deep down into the pockets of the taxpayers. The cry is echoed and re-echoed that "appropriations can't be cut without crippling public enterprises," nevertheless the farmer who has half of his cotton eaten up by the boll weevil and the merchant who finds his trade dwindling because the farmer's cotton is destroyed by the boll weevil, find that they MUST cut down their expenses even to depriving the wife of a dress and perchance the sweet, gracious daughter a chance to go to school. Somebody in Mississippi has got to carry the slogan of "economy in public affairs."—Cutting the garment to fit the cloth.

Mr. Citizen of Grenada County who owns an automobile or a truck, had best appear before the supervisors next Tuesday if your machine is already assessed at all it can bear.

MR. AND MRS. H. G. ANDERSON LOSES 6-YEAR OLD CHILD

On Sunday afternoon of this week, the little 6-year old, Henry Gaines, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Anderson of Graysport, finished his life's journey and was carried away to the other world.

The little fellow was taken ill only Friday, and while he had the best medical attention and every care, still the hand of death could not be stayed. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. R. Cunningham of the Presbyterian church on Monday, after which all that was mortal of this little fellow was laid beneath the sod in Gore Springs burying ground. While he is gone away, yet his voice will ever be heard by the fond parents. He cannot come back to them but they can go to him, and they can rest assured that he dwells with the angels in that beautiful land above.

The Sentinel tenders sincere sympathy.

COUNTY TO DISPOSE OF POORHOUSE

The Grenada County Colored Relief Society organized some weeks ago at the instance of Mr. J. T. Thomas and a few other philanthropic minded persons, has made it possible to depopulate the Grenada County Alms house. The lone old negro was taken out of the Alms House this week and carried to the quarters provided for the old negroes unable to take care of themselves. This step was taken after consultation with the board of supervisors and with that body's approval.

Mr. Kilgore, who has a contract with the County to keep the Alms House until January 1, 1924, also consented to moving the old negro. Kilgore will no doubt be allowed to remain there if he so desires until his contract terminates, however, it is doubtful if he will wish to do so. In any event, it is the purpose of the supervisors to sell the Alms House property.

The Grenada County Colored Relief Society makes it possible to care for indigent old negroes, and some way will be provided to care for indigent white persons.

The Grenada County Colored Relief Society is another evidence of somebody's bigness of heart. A great many white people have signed a membership card which pledges so much for a monthly support of the Society. No doubt nearly every white man in the County who s regarded as able, will be approached. Gus Henderson is the secretary and membership solicitor.

Grenada County has long felt that her Alms House was an eye sore and a reflection on the people of the County, and now that a business way has been found to dispose of it, a long deferred step in the right direction is about to be taken.

Percy Bell Issues an Address to the People

TO THE PEOPLE OF MISSISSIPPI:

Over a year ago I announced through the press that I would be a candidate for Governor of Mississippi subject to the 1923 Democratic primaries. Since that time I have been over the greater part of the State and have made a number of public addresses in which I have advocated purity and cleanliness of public and private life, a rigid enforcement of law, suppression of crime, co-operation of our people to the end that wealth may be increased and taxation decreased, the proper support of educational and eleemosynary institutions, and have discussed with our people some of the problems of the State.

I am adopting this method of again bringing my candidacy to the attention of all of our people and of urging upon them the necessity of examining before 1923, most carefully the records and qualifications of candidates for public office. The Governorship is an office of greatest importance in filling which no mistake should be made. The possibility of making a mistake will be largely obviated by correctly ascertaining the records and qualifications of all of the candidates.

I am not a politician, but a lawyer and business man. I have some small farming interests, while my practice, which is private and not corporate, requires me to deal with the business problems of my clients. Before becoming a lawyer, I was a school teacher and superintendent of education of my home county. I have since served in both houses of the Mississippi Legislature, and have been Chancellor of my district. In my practice as well as in the filling of public office, I have endeavored faithfully and conscientiously to discharge my duties to my clients and the public, and I cheerfully refer the public to any lawyer of the State or to any citizen of my home county, as to my standing and reliability as a lawyer and man. As many problems confronting a Governor are legal and all of them require judicial consideration and sound reasoning, my training and experience in all three branches of the State government should be valuable.

My principal aim and desire in seeking the Governorship is to render a service to the State, and, if elected, I shall devote all of my energy to that end, endeavoring to bring about those beneficial changes which I believe all of us are convinced should be made. If elected, I pledge myself to give the State a clean business administration, free from graft, scandal, or corruption, or the suspicion of them; to see that all, rich or poor, capital or labor, adherent or opponent, have a square deal; that the business of the State is conducted with the same care, economy and efficiency which a good business man gives to his own affairs, supervising and visiting personally its varied institutions; to guard the reputation of the State for purity of administration and fairness of dealing as jealously as one guards his own good name. I shall endeavor to aid in reducing the burden of taxation, both by increasing the revenue of the State, and by aiding its development. Our taxation system is sadly in need of revision, while great potentialities of wealth are lying undeveloped.

The vast cut-over areas of South Mississippi, at present of small value and yielding little revenue, present a great opportunity for development. The present rate of cutting timber is rapidly increasing these areas, and will practically exhaust our timber in a few years.

Fruit and truck raising on those lands adapted thereto and reforestation of those adapted best to tree growth, will add much to the wealth of Mississippi, and furnish remunerative employment for her people.

With proper encouragement and diversification, with the development of our resources and co-operative marketing, our people can become wealthier and better able to meet the financial burden created by our various educational and charitable institutions. Our revenues should be administered wisely and economically by the elimination of useless offices, by systematizing our spending by means of the budget system and by saving wherever possible.

I shall also labor to remove our State colleges and other institutions from politics, leaving them free to function in their own sphere, without political corruption or influence. While in the Senate I introduced a bill for the support of our colleges by the millage system, which would go far toward reaching the end desired. I believe also that the former students of the colleges should have some voice in the selection of the college Trustees.

JUDGE PERCY BELL

I favor liberal but not extravagant appropriations for our educational institutions, and the care of our unfortunates, but think that some of the institutions could be made more nearly self-supporting, and that all of our schools should demonstrate that their chief function is preparing students for the practical affairs of life.

As a citizen, a judge and a legislator, I have always stood for a strict enforcement of law, which policy and position will be maintained by me if elected Governor, with the end in view of decreasing crime, encouraging those charged with enforcement of law, and eliminating the destructive traffic in liquors which will ruin our people unless stopped. The last named criminals particularly need not expect me to exercise for them the pardoning power, if I am Governor. I shall, if elected, also carry out in all appointments to Boards and otherwise, my idea of service to the State, making such appointments only for the good of the State.

The home life of a people determines their history. If elected, it shall be my purpose to encourage that love of home and social purity which has been a characteristic of our people, and with my wife and babies to maintain in the Executive Mansion a Christian home, in which we all believe.

Our people have had acute differences of political opinion in the past, which have unfortunately been frequently characterized by bitter personal feeling, and while I recognize the right of every person not only to his own opinion, but to the expression of it, and have no quarrel with those who differ with me, I know that hate is a great destructive influence. It is my opinion that, regardless of past differences of opinion, our people can co-operate in building up our State, and to that co-operation I invite them. I am glad to work with any Mississippian for the upbuilding of our State whether or not we agree on other matters, or whether he supports me politically. If elected, I shall seek the aid of all our people in bringing about a better and greater Mississippi, my sole ambition being one of service.

I am in position to do this, as my candidacy is independent, seeks the support of all who are interested in the betterment and upbuilding of our State, and if successful, will owe nothing to any special interest or group, but to the citizenship of the entire State.

It is gratifying to know that we are to have the counsel and active cooperation of the good women of our State. I have favored woman's suffrage for many years, and hope for great results through its instrumentality.

During my service in the Senate in 1920 and 1922 I voted for, worked for and championed the measures advocated by the women of Mississippi, demonstrating my faith by my works.

My campaign will continue to be on a high plane, free from personalities, a discussion of measures and not men, of principles and not people. It is my purpose to discuss with our people during the campaign other needs and problems of our State, too numerous to go into here, but I ask the aid and support, the vote and influence of all who believe with me in the principles here indicated.

Respectfully,
PERCY BELL.

LOWELL FARMER SAYS IT HELPED FRIENDS TOO

The experience of J. B. Bigger, a well-known farmer, living at Lowell, N. C., R. F. D. No. 1, furnishes another very striking illustration of the value of Tanlac to persons suffering from a run-down condition. While in Gastonia the other day, Mr. Bigger made the following statement:

"When I started taking Tanlac I had been laid up with typhoid and malaria fever, which left me in mighty bad shape. My stomach was so out of gear that nothing agreed with me. My nerves were all unstrung and I was so run down that I simply wasn't worth a nickel so far as work was concerned. I was troubled with gas on my stomach and had such bad dizzy spells that I could hardly stand up.

"I took six bottles of Tanlac in all, but I commenced to feel like a new man before the second bottle was gone. My stomach misery, dizziness and nervousness has left me entirely. I sleep like a log at night and feel as strong and well as I ever did. I've put a number of my friends onto Tanlac and it has helped them just like it did me. I don't believe it has an equal in the world."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

20 YEARS AGO IN GRENADA

Arch Roane spent several days at Oxford last week.

Illinois Central System Urges Co-operation in the Movement of Coal

The Illinois Central System is facing the problem of providing coal cars for transporting fall and winter bituminous coal supplies from the mines to its patrons. Ordinarily this task is performed partly during the summer, before the heavy traffic occasioned by the movement of the crops begins. Owing to the miners' strike in the bituminous coal fields, which continued for nearly five months, from April 1 to August 22, the heavy movement of coal and the movement of the crops come at the same time this fall.

During the miners' strike the side tracks of the railroads were crowded with many thousands of idle coal cars. Reserve supplies of coal were exhausted, and all coal bins are now practically empty. Every informed person will appreciate that no railway system could keep itself adequately equipped to meet such a situation as this. However, the Illinois Central System organization is proceeding to the task of moving as many tons of coal from the mines to dealers, consumers and industries as it is humanly possible to move with its facilities.

By the prompt loading and unloading of cars and by direct billing of cars to avoid delays occasioned by reconsignment coal mine operators, coal dealers and coal consumers can aid materially in accelerating the coal movement. With the people demanding coal to keep them warm and prevent suffering this winter and with industries demanding coal to keep up production, thus avoiding unemployment, every person should constitute himself or herself a committee of one to see that no coal car is delayed for even one unnecessary hour.

We appeal to coal mine operators, coal dealers and coal consumers to co-operate with this company in preventing unnecessary delay in the loading and unloading of coal cars. We believe that the prompt movement of coal cars has never been so necessary as it is at this time. We also believe that, if we receive 100 per cent co-operation from coal mine operators, coal dealers and coal consumers in the prompt loading and unloading of coal cars, no one dependent upon the Illinois Central System for transportation will suffer from cold this winter.

About 75 per cent of the bituminous coal loaded on the Illinois Central System rails is unloaded at destinations on other lines. Therefore, one of our problems is to get cars unloaded promptly on our connecting lines and returned to us for quick delivery to the mines. In this we need and ask the greatest co-operation even of those whom we do not directly serve.

The Illinois Central System owns 30,667 open top cars suitable for coal loading. To this number should be added 5,000 new coal cars which we have recently purchased. Two thousand of these cars are now being delivered, and delivery of the remaining 3,000 has been promised in November in time to take part in the heavy coal traffic this fall.

One of the responsibilities devolving upon a railway system is that of constantly adding to its equipment in order to discharge faithfully its duty to its patrons. In addition to the 5,000 new coal cars which we are adding to those already owned, we are this month receiving deliveries of sixty-five new locomotives which were ordered last July.

The aggregate cost of cars and locomotives bought by the Illinois Central System this year amounts to more than $14,000,000. Yet, in spite of this and the further fact that this railway system has expended more than $180,000,000 for enlargements and improvements to its property in the last twelve years, its capacity for serving its patrons this fall and winter may be inadequate.

We ask our patrons to consider carefully all of the obstacles which have confronted us and the other railroads before framing an opinion in regard to why the capacity of the railroads is sometimes not equal to demands.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

C. H. MARKHAM,
President, Illinois Central System.

LOOKING FOR OPPORTUNITIES.

A wise and honest man, a man of ability and earnestness, is not troubled about looking for opportunities. Many and great opportunities every where are on a constant outlook for such men. It is the numbskull and street loafer who is continually talking and complaining about the lack of opportunities. As a rule his native town is too slow and small, and he feels compelled to leave his parental backyard for some hustling, bustling metropolis in order to show the world the stuff he is made of. Mush.

We have several such young fellows standing around the post-office, with their hands in their pantaloon pockets up to the elbows, smoking cigarettes, feeling confident that our home town has no opportunity for them. It is a sad fact, but every village and town has such serious parents. Remember, no village is so small and quiet, but is large and active enough for every honest man of practical ability to be happy and do something noble and useful.

It is all fol-de-rol to be everlastingly hankering to live in a large city because of larger opportunities. Of course a man who has really outgrown his native village has a moral right to seek larger opportunity elsewhere, but that man is as rare as a pearl in an oyster. Thousands of our youth, however, are annually rushing to our larger cities believing themselves to be talented and capable to become famous and financially successful in the midst of the large and dazzling opportunities of the city. Alas! only to be compelled to turn the grindstone for sharpening the tools of others. If our young men are wise and truly have great ability, they will remain at home, at least, for a season longer until their wisdom teeth are cut. It is more satisfactory to be a prominent and respected citizen of a village than to be an insignificant stranger, jostled and ignored, by the hurrying mass of humanity in a metropolis. We would rather be a hog on a farm than a caged lion in a menagerie.

A racking nervous headache? MENTHOLATUM chases it away.

An exchange puts it this way: We live in a land of high mountains and high taxes, low valleys and low wages, big crooked rivers and big crooked statesmen, big lakes, big pumpkins, big men with pumpkin heads, silver streams that gambol in the mountains, and pious politicians that gamble in the night, roaring cataracts and roaring orators, fast trains, fast horses, fast young men, sharp lawyers, sharp financiers, and sharp toed shoes, noisy children, fertile plains that lie like a sheet of water and a thousand newspapers that lie like thunder.

THE TIME TO ADVERTISE.

There is nothing on earth so mysteriously funny as a newspaper advertisement. The prime, first, last and all the time, object of an advertisement is to draw custom. It is not, was not, and never will be designed for any other human purpose. So the merchant waits till the busy season comes and his store is so full of customer that he can't get his hat off, and then he rushes to the newspapers and puts in his advertisement. When the dull season gets along and there is no trade and he wants to sell goods so bad he can't pay his rent, he takes out his advertisement. That is some of them do, but occasionally a level headed merchant puts in a bigger one and scoops in all the business while his neighbors are making mortgages to pay their gas bills.

There are times when you couldn't stop people from buying everything in the store if you planted a cannon behind the door and that's the time the advertisement is sent out on its holy mission. It makes light work for the advertisement, for a chalk sign on the sidewalk could do all that was needed and have a half holiday six days in the week, but who wants to favor an advertisement? They are built to do hard work, and should be sent out in dull days when a customer has to be knocked down with hard facts and kicked insensible with bankrupt reductions and dragged in with irresistible slaughter of prices before he will spend a cent.

Write this down where you'll fall over it every day. The time to draw business is when you want business, and not when you have more business than you can attend to already.

The reading public has no doubt noted that Gov. Lee M. Russell was one of the "volunteer" speakers for "Better School Week." We have a suspicion that State Superintendent of Education, Bond, was a bit embarrassed about what to do about assigning the Governor—who wanted him? We are also wondering, if, while the Governor has out basking in the sunshine and the delightful freedom of the country, whether he has cast any eyes about to see if another country girl could be found to yield to him as the poor Francis Birkhead did. We have wondered, too, if the good people where the Governor chanced to go, heard him say anything about the high prices of Text Books which he helped fasten on the State. We are sure that the Governor did not tell them that the same books they are forced to buy can be bought much cheaper just across the Tennessee line.

A CAT FIGHT HURTS THE PRICE OF COTTON.

There seems to be no way yet devised by man whereby the price of cotton can be kept up, regardless of all theories, when the speculators desire to force it down. Supply and demand seems to have no effect whatever.—Sunflower Tocsin.

Yes, it appears that almost everything affects the cotton market downward. A storm in the Azores Islands will cause a drop in the price of cotton. A cat fight at the equator shakes a few cents off the farmer's cotton; a miscue in a social event in London swats the price of cotton. The remedy lies in the farmer's becoming financially able to hold his cotton for a reasonable time so that the fellows who have toiled not about producing it may have notice that he is no more anxious to sell than they are to buy.

THE EFFORT TO FIX REVENUE AGENT'S SALARY.

We are of the opinion that the effort to cut out the commissions, as contemplated in the proposed initiative petition, which the law provides for the State Revenue Agent on the collection of taxes which have escaped tax assessors and boards of supervisors, and to place that official on a stated salary, is a mistake.

In the first place, the State Revenue Agent does not collect, he can not collect, anything from any citizen of the State who has paid all taxes required by law. And the man or corporation which does not pay what taxes are required by law, should be made to do so by the State Revenue Agent or by some other official.

Human nature is human nature in officials as well as in private citizens, and when the incentive to make a search for tax evaders is taken away, then a vast majority of them will escape. The State of Mississippi has just made a try out on its County officials on a salary basis and has seen fit to go back to a fee basis.

The Legislature beat about the bush for three months at Jackson and talked loud and long about what the Revenue Agent was receiving by virtue of his commissions out of back taxes, yet not a single intelligent effort was made to amend the law which the Revenue Agent operates under. We are of the opinion that the law should be amended and that certain additional limitations should be placed on the activities of that official, but to virtually make the office a nullity—for that is what the proposed Initiative petition means—would be a serious blunder.

These observations are made without any reference to the present occupant of the office of Revenue Agent. We are looking at the proposition from the standpoint of the State at large.

If the public wants to place a premium on tax dodging, let it cut out the commissions of the officer who hunts the dodgers up.

CONDEMNS MODERN DANCE.

The Ladies' Home Journal is publishing a series of articles in the "unspeakable jazz" and the immoral character of much of the modern dancing. This is a sign that decent public opinion is beginning to awake from its apparent lethargy and to make itself felt. Several cities have initiated police supervision of their public dance places and violators of good manners and good taste are put out. In one town they are sent home in the police patrol.

It has come to be a common thing for a young man to meet a young lady in good society, invite her to dance, step immediately on the ballroom floor, clasp her in a tight embrace, place his cheek against hers and begin a series of gyrations, twisting, wiggling, wobbling and toddling to the moaning, jerky strains of the orchestra, which a few years ago would have brought the blush of shame to a hardened sinner and would have caused the arrest of both if seen by a policeman. The young lady who would slap a man's face if he attempted such familiarities with her in private quietly submits on the dance floor, and often meets her partner more than half way. Until comparatively recently such actions were only witnessed as a part of the orgies of the underworld where they had their origin.

Many reasons have been assigned for this sort of behavior, but whatever may be the reason there is absolutely no excuse for it. It is vulgar love-making, frank sex-excitement, promiscuous and in public. And strange to say, mothers and fathers stand by and see their daughters indulge in this sort of thing with one man after another without making the least criticism. They stand for it because the public stands for it. There seems to have come over us a sort of moral paralysis for the moment, to the extent even of causing those who are disgusted to shrug their shoulders and say nothing.

It is gratifying to see signs of an awakened public feeling of decency and good taste in this matter. The dancers are not the only guilty. Advertisers of dance music and graphophone records have displayed colored pictures in leading magazines showing smart young couples in the objectionable attitudes described, and even pages of reading matter have carried such pictures to illustrate jokes or stories. The general public has had its share of the blame, and the public in general has suffered.

For we are all a part of this. The public conduct that is tolerated sets the standard of our morals as a nation and as a people. Nations have their ratings in morality the same as individuals. Some nations are cleaner than others. And each nation is judged by the actions, the things, that are permitted by the general public and which go unreproved. Citizen John Smith is affected by the lowering of the moral standards in dance halls and ball rooms. Immoralities committed in private are largely the affairs of individuals. Their very privacy shows at least a respect for public opinion. But the public, the people, are rated at what they stand for, and the man who stays at home to keep out of it all is affected just the same as the rest. He is an American, and he will have an immoral America to bring up his children in unless this tendency is checked.

Dancers themselves, dancing teachers and music publishers, if they were not short-sighted in their own interests, would aid in bringing about a reform and lifting the moral standard Carrying the objectionable features to excess caused the abolition of the saloon and the curtailment of horse-racing and drove out prize fighting and boxing matches from most of the states. First the sport is made very objectionable by the worst element of its participators and then arises a strong wave of indignation demanding its suppression. That is our customary way of doing things in this country, and friends of the dance should profit by the lessons. Dancing must be made decent or dancng will become taboo among the better classes of people and be relegated to the rank of bootlegging and bookmaking.

There sems to be a natural instinct for dancing among nearly all peoples and in every stage of civilization. There always has been dancing and there always will be, but at different periods of history it has gone up and down in popular favor and in its standing as a form of amusement. During the Puritan regime, which was a reaction from the immoralities of the age, it was severely frowned on. In the old days of the minuet, which was graceful, pleasing and entirely unobjectionable, dancing held high favor among the very best classes. It took some time for the general public to give its approval to the waltz, which required the gentleman's arm to be around the lady's waist, but since the dance was beautiful and the position necessary for its execution, objection to it gradually died away. But there has always been a considerable element who have persisted in condemning the waltz and kindred dances. This element has been largely increased and is now fast increasing as a result of the objectionable features that have crept into all dancing of late years.

There are many people who like to dance but who have temporarily stopped because of the new character dancing has assumed. These people would welcome a reform, and would be glad to join again the ranks of the dancers. If the dance stays bad or gets worse, discriminating men and women will gradually drop out and dancing will gradually sink to the plane of things to be watched by the police officers.

Intelligent dancers and intelligent people of every class should put a stop to public misbehavior in the guise of dancing. Cool, hard-headed men who are not reformers have said that the modern jazz dance is doing more harm to our youth and to our country than the saloons ever did. It leads our girls by easy and logical steps to joy rides, drinking, smoking, profanity and the indulgence in stories which were supposed to be confined to men's smoking rooms. There is no use blinking this condition. It exists. And there is going to be a reform from within or from without. As long as America's heart is sound such a situation will not long go unchallenged. If those on the inside will do the cleaning up the dance will be saved. If not the uncompromising reformer, who cuts off the leg to cure a sore toe, will be on the scene with blood in his eye.

Public opinion will suffice for this job if it will wake up. When a man casually speaks to a friend or to an acquaintance expressing disapproval, that is public opinion at work.—Path-Finder.

SPARKS OF JOLLITY.

What is that which he who has it not does not wish for, but he who has it would not part with it for any money?—A bald head.

Avoid argument with ladies. In spinning yarns among silks and satins, a man will always be worsted and twisted and finally wound up.

A fashionable mamma's advice to a married daughter: "Never take your husband to an evening party; there is nothing that is so much in the way."

Trying to do business without advertising is like winking at a pretty girl through a pair of green goggles. You may know what you are doing, but nobody else does.

A cynical man says the reason women are so fond of writing leters is that they rejoice in the opportunity of saying all they wish without the possibility of an interruption.

A young lady recently married to a farmer, one day visited the cow-houses, when she thus interogated her milk-maid: "By the by, Mary, which of these cows is it that gives the buttermilk?"

An Albany damsel asked one of her fellow boarders, a stylish dry goods clerk, at the breakfast table, "Why is your mustache like my back hair?" He blushingly gave it up; the answer caused him to blush still more, "Because it is all down."

"Mother," said a little girl who was engaged in making her doll an apron, "I believe I will be a duchess when I grow up." "How do you ever expect to become a duchess my daughter?" Her mother asked. "Why, by marying a Dutchman, to be sure," replied the girl.

A lady had a favorite lay dog which she called Perchance. "A singular name," said somebody, "for a beautiful pet, madam. Where did you find it?" "Oh", drawled she, "it was named from Byron's dog. You remember where he says, 'Perchance my dog will howl.' "

A FOOLISH IDEA.

We heard a young man remark last week that "the world owes me a living." It is hoped for that young man's good that he'll get the notion out of his head. It's a mistake, a grave mistake. He never entertained a more foolish idea nor one which will bring him a smaller measure of respect. The world owes the young man nothing; but instead he owes the world and society an active, noble manhood, a steady, honest energy which will enable him to associate with decent men and women in a true manliness of character that will make his friendship valuable and his presence and companionship desired. The truly intelligent activity, and this young man should contribute to society's happiness and welfare the grace which comes through study, toil and honest thought.

GIVE TRAMPS WORK.

The best way to extend charity to persons who are in need is to give them work. Don't give any able bodied man a penny or a mouthful unless he works for it. By this the man retains his self-respect, and the profession of the tramp is not encouraged. If a man needs help and is able to work and you are tempted to give him something, don't you do it. But instead give him work. Odd jobs can always be found, and set him at these. We do not advise refusing to relieve hunger, but we advise that it be done in a manner that will not breed dependence in men. If everyone would do this all over the land, this country would soon cease to be the paradise for tramps that it has been.

SELF-TAUGHT.

Many men are said to be self-taught. No man was ever taught in any other way. Do you suppose a man to be a bucket to be hung on the well of knowledge and pumped full? Man is a creature that learns by the exertion of hs own faculties. There are aids to learning of various kinds; but no matter how many of these aids a man may be surrounded by, after all, the learning is that which he acquires himself. Whether he is in college, in school or out of school, every man must educate himself. And in our times and in this community every man has the means of doing it.

TRESPASS NOTICE.

This is to notify all parties that my land in Beat 2 is posted against hunting, fishing and trespassing of all kinds. This means everybody.

WHY SOME TOWNS GROW.

Have Men of Push and Energy Who Back Their Confidence With Investments.

The reason why some towns grow is because there are men of push and energy in them who are not afraid to spend their time and money to boom their town. They erect good buildings, organize stock companies and establish factories, secure railroads, work for public improvements and use every means in their power to induce people to locate in their city. Wherever they go they tell of the advantages of their city, they write about them in every letter, they send circulars and newspapers to all whom they think they can get to visit the city, and when anyone visits them treats him so kindly that he falls in love with them and their city at once. It is enterprise and everyone pulling together that makes a progressive town and don't let the fact escape your memory.

To hear every person saying something pleasant about its people and its interests is the surest, quickest and easiest way to make a town attractive to a stranger. One of the best ways in which to make a town attractive with that sort of attraction that will draw other people to it is for every man and every woman to have a pleasant word for the people and the town generally. Talk up your town if you would have it do well.

Talk up your town if you would have others come to you. Talk up your town if you would feel an interest in it. and have its people feel an interest in you. There is no better way to do it. And many a time one little word of unpleasant reference to something that does not exactly suit you and not particularly concern you as to that matter, will turn a good man's influence away from your town and may even drive him away. At your own fireside, talk up your town. Among your neighbors talk up your town. When you come in contact with strangers, talk up the most potent agency ever set in motion for helping your town.

STATE FAIR TO OPEN IN FEW DAYS

Jackson, Miss.—Within less than a fortnight the Centennial number in the chain of Mississippi State Fairs will be thrown open to the world in general and to the world of Mississippi in particular. In view of the fact that the State Fair, as a vital, pulsating concern, and publicly owned, with the Municipality of the Capital City as its domicile and center of operations, the State Fair for 1822, the movement to make it something more than a mere exposition of material things has quite caught the public mind and the approval of leaders throughout Mississippi.

Incidental to this 19th annual Mississippi State Fair plans have been perfected to make it a real tangible exposition of the ratio of progress that has been made, not merely since the State of Mississippi wore its swadding clothes—one hundred and five years ago—but during the two decades which have passed since the movement became established as a going concern.

The purpose is to stage a demonstration that will do justice to the proud record which has been written in achievements worth-while industrially , intellectually, commercially educationally, and the people and the organized life of the city of Jackson—official, civic, domestic, will be sponsor for the uplifting and demonstrative features to be presented.

MEN WANTED.

Men who are not for sale.
Men who are honest to the core.
Men who know their message and tell it.
Men who know their dutv and do it.
Men who know their place and fill it.
Men who will never swagger or flinch.
Men too large for certain limits and too strong for sectarian bands.
Men whose consciences are as steady as the needle to the pole.
Men who are not too lazy to work, and too proud to be poor.
Men who will stand for the right though the heavens totter and the earth reels.
Men who can tell the truth, and look the world and the devil right in the eye.
Men who will condemn wrong in friend or foe—in themselves as well as others.
Men who can have courage without whistling for it, and joy without shouting for it.
Men through whom the current of everlasting life runs still, and deep, and strong.
These are men that achieve something worth while and accomplish the grandest and noblest purposes of life.

THEN WE COULD HAVE WALLOPED OUR CONGREGATION

When news is scarce we have but little stock to fall back on. If we try to be "phunny we phail," and if we produce anything containing any merit outside of itemizing we dare not publish it, lest our readers will say, "that crank." If we touch on politics we hear the cry of "calamity howler." If at time we feel religiously inclined and should make slight allusions, somehow the pith will get punched out and someone will come in our sanctum and ask "what did you intend to convey?" Sometimes we spell band and Betsy, who spells by intuition will ask, how do you spell such a word?" We go on and spell it according to Hoyle. "Why didn't you write it so, then?" These words will creep in and then the compositor will doubtless say, "old fool' I wish he would stop writing or learn to spell." Our greatest fault in this direction is, we are too lavish with letters. We have been caught with two d's in widow and two t's in city, all from a desire to be liberal and accord the "intrinsic value" in all cases. It is too late now. We have made a mistake in our calling, having had a touch of most everything. We sometimes think we ought to have been a clergyman, then we could have walloped our congregation with no back talk.

Some day you will realize the fact things that give value to your property, and it is only a question of time the value of your place many times what you think you have saved by paying your money for goods in the cities.

If you go to your home merchant, offer him cash, show him the article in the catalog, nine times out of ten, he will sell you something much better and for less money, and you will not have to write a letter, buy a money order or pay parcel post fees. It is your duty to give the home merchants the chance to sell you the article. The people in your home town purchase the produce of the farm—chickens, eggs, feed grain, cotton, fruits. The bigger the town you help to build the more the value of these things, because the demand will be greater. Talk to the home merchants in a friendly manner about the things you want to buy, and before sending money away never to return again. Let the home merchant know just what you want and have him order it if it is not carried in his stock. If either one is to succeed, the town and people must pull together. The cause of one is the cause of the other. The interests are mutual and inseparably linked together. Money sent away by either the town man or the country man hurts both of them, besides it lessens the circulating medium and tends to bring about hard times just that much. Every citizen ought to be able to join in and help build up this town by patronizing the local merchants

HOFFA AND MOODY

"The Men That Put Sure In Insurance", Handle All Kinds Of Insurance. Specialize In Cotton and Lumber.

Most men nowadays and many sensible women too, pay out good, hard earned money every year for all sorts of Insurance—not grudgingly, but with the full knowledge that it is a real investment, one that will surely bring much substantial returns is case of fire, loss of chattels, accident and even death, to care for those left dependent. Insurance is nothing if not a real, solid, safe, sane, sensible investment.

The greatest caution however should be exercised in selection of an agency, and the character and standing of the company issuing the policy. If the agency is firmly established, with personal responsiblity attached dependability may be placed in it. Such an agency in Grenada is that conducted by Hoffa and Moody. This agency writes every kind of insurance and having been so long identified with the business places them in a position to give the advice of an expert in whatever kind of insurance is desired.

The Hoffa and Moody Insurance Agency are the exclusive agents for a number of the strongest and most substantial insurance companies.

It is not the province of this newspaper to sell insurance. It is however one of its missions to advise its readers of the safe road in such matters.

You might think that you do not need insurance—"Just Yet", but you do, every man does. Get in touch with Messrs. Hoffa and Moody and you will be assured absolute satisfaction in your insurance.

Suppose Your Home Should Burn Tonight?

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE—WHAT IT TAKES TO RUN IT.

October 8th Is "Work Day"

Have you any realization of how large a household we have here in Jackson? Have you ever thought how much planning, and how much ingenuity it takes to always make ends meet? Here are some figures taken from our books:

We serve 675 meals each day. To do this we consume 2000 biscuits, 100 loaves of light bread, forty gallons of sweet milk, three bushels of sweet potatoes, seventy puonds of fresh meat (when we have it,) ten gallons of molasses, and other things in proportion.

To clothe these two hundred children decently, 200 pairs of shoes, 400 pairs of stockings, 600 suits of underwear, 300 girls' dresses, 150 pairs boys' trousers, 300 boys shirts and blouses and other necessities in proportion.

To sleep this household:

175 beds, 175 matresses, 250 quilts or blankets, 700 sheets and 300 pair of pillow cases, towels—ah!

For the school one year; 2,000 tablets, 2,000 lead pencils, 600 school books.

"Lo! these are a part of the needed things, but the multitude of necessities who can estimate."

On Sunday, October 8th will you bear this in mind? What does it cost per day, week, month, to maintain your family of two or three children? Here are two hundred to be cared for.—Our Home.

The Wheeler Bros., Trained Animal Shows Coming to Brighten Humdrum Existence.

The sun peeps over the eastern hills in a blaze of glory. The world awakens and starts another busy day. The small boy hies him from his bed and hurries from home while the dew is still left on the grass. The country folks arise before the dawn and hurry through their chores, don their Sunday clothes and start for town, where all about is an air of waiting expectancy and gathering crowds in holiday attire. The anxiously awaited event has come at last.

With the coming of dawn the show train pulls into town and at once commences a scene of hustle and hurry. Orders sharply given and quickly obeyed by a vast throng of workers who help to unload the trains. Even the elephants are called into service. All is noise and excitement while all about are spectators staring with eager eyes and guessing at the many marvels and wonders still covered with the protecting canvas.

On the show grounds the same hurry is going on. Acres of canvas cover the ground, stakes are being driven, the big tent pulled into place and in the twinkling of an eye the large pavilions are raised, while over all many bright colored banners float in the soft morning breeze.

This is the daily experience of a big show requiring the most careful generalship to accomplish the seemingly impossible feat of getting ready for the afternoon performance, and such are the scenes to be witnessed at Grenada.

The Wheeler Bros., Shows will arrive for two performances on Thursday, October 12.

ABILITY AND CHARACTER THE TEST

Editor W. J. Shoemaker, of the Jasper County News, not only conducts an interesting newspaper but in his editorial columns there always appear items of unusual worth. In discussing the kind of men Mississippi needs in politics he has the following to say:

"The demagogue tries to array capital against labor, and towns and cities against the country, and is having its effect in Mississinpi. It is a downright shame for any man to try to create ill feeling between any people. That kind of man will not do the state nor himself much good. We all need to get closer together, to know each other better and thereby solve some of the problems which we are confronting today. We will never solve them by listening to demagogues, for they have already brought shame and disgrace to our State. Determine now if you have not already done so, that you will not vote for any person for office who cannot measure up to the standard of a MAN. If he is not honest, though he be as wise as Solomon, you cannot trust him. If he must tell dirty tales, use slang, vulgarity or too much sarcasm in making his speeches, in odrer to hold the attention of the people, you had beter let him alone."

A TWICE TOLD TALE

One Of Interest To Our Readers.

Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitated to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of a Grenada woman is confirmed after three years:

Mrs. E. T. Sweeney, 18 College Ave., says: "I was weak, nervous and run down generally and I suffered from backache. Being on my feet all day while doing my housework, I blame for the trouble. At times I would get dizzy and when making the beds, as I would raise up, I could see all kinds of stars before me. My kidneys acted irregularly, at times. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills being good so I purchased a box at Fatherree's Drug Store. After I had used them for a few days I was all right. I continued taking Doan's until I was well and I am glad to recommend them." (Statement given June 13, 1918.)

On April 13, 1922, Mrs. Sweeney added: "Since using and recommending Doan's Kidney Pills in 1918 I am sure my cure has been a lasting one and I haven't had to use them since."

GIVE US A RAIN.

Backward, turn backward, oh Time on thy way; give us some rain again, just for one day. Take us back to April and give us a soak; the cistern is empty, the cow's gone dry, we're ready to choke. The dust and the heat make each minute an hour; turn a back hand-spring and give us a shower.

VARDAMAN'S LETTER ACCEPTING DEFEAT

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 8.—Ex-Senator James K. Vardaman, defeated Tuesday by Hubert D. Stephens for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, today issued the following statement:

"To the People of Mississippi:

"Today I am leaving for the west to enjoy a relaxation and rest for a few weeks after the excitement and toil of the campaign through which we have just passed. My time will be spent with my brother, John Vardaman, and while I am on this vacation I hope to find a dentist who can relieve the condition of my mouth, which resulted from the removal of my teeth a year ago.

"I shall not forget Mississippi and Mississippians in my wanderings through the west, and whatever may be my fortune I know that nothing can or will take the place in my heart and love for the good people of Mississippi. We have a great state and also great problems to solve. Our white people are free, honest, brave and patriotic but eternal vigilance is the price of liberty as much today as it was in the trying times of Patrick Henry, when he fired the hearts of his compatriots with that dramatic statement, 'Give me liberty or give me death.' The freedom of our people will be preserved in the porportion that they are true to the ideals of the fathers and loyal to the principles of the commonwealth. The liberties of the people are within the keeping of the people, and they will be enjoyed so long as the people of Mississippi are vigilant in the affairs of the government.

"I shall be away probably two months and I hope n the meantime to completely recover that vigorous health with which God has always blessed me, and upon my return to Mississippi I hope by deep and continuous study, by occasional speeches and by writing to help the people of Mississippi in the solution of the great economic and governmental questions which are upon us for treatment.

"Those 85,000 courageous, patriotic and unselfish friends who labored for and voted for me in the recent campaign, I want to express my deep and heartfelt thanks. You have been good to me far beyond my deserts. I have endeavored to serve you with a single purpose, and that is the best interest of you and all the people of Mississippi.

"Particularly am I indebted to the campaign committee and Mrs. John Clark, Mrs. Virginia R. Price, Mrs. Ross Collins, Mrs. Lee M. Russell and Mrs. Mary Dinkins and the many gentlemen who made speeches for me and sa bravely and loyally presented our cause to the people of this state from the platform.

"My chief concern is the disappointment of my friends that I did not receive the nomination. My friends were so loyal, so faithful, so interested that I wish a complete victory could have crowned their efforts, but I know that the principles of government which the friends represented will live and always be promulgated by the same loyal, patriotic, democratic citizens of Mississippi.

"It is our duty now to support the nominee and uphold his hands in every laudable thing which he shall do in the interest of the people, and this course I earnesly request my friends to observe.

"Whatever fate may have in store for me in the future, my devotion to the brave, loyal and honest men and women of Mississippi will grow and strengthen as the years go by.

"God bless you all.

"Thanking the people of Mississippi for their unnumbered goodnesses and generous treatment, I am,

"Cordially and sincerely,

"JAS. K. VARDAMAN."

FRIEDMAN'S

OPENING SALE NOW ON

We take great pleasure in announcing to the people of Grenada territory that Friedman's New Dry Goods Store in Grenada is now open for business with a complete stock of seasonable and dependable merchandise consisting of Dry Goods, Shoes and Clothing for men, women and children at prices that will astonish you.

This new store is to be our permanent headquarters and we are going to be resident citizens of your community. Our store will not merely be a trading point but a place for you to visit—where you can view the styles and just "peep" around in case you do not happen to be ready to buy.

We have in this store a stock of merchandise that will make your shopping tours merely a matter of selection. We are unpacking, daily, some of the most desirable items in dry goods it has been our pleasure to handle.

These goods are of the highest quality. They are the best values obtainable. We told our manufacturing friends of our intentions to open a store that would be a real trading institution in the community—a store where "Quality at a Price" was to be the slogan. Our friends were quick to perceive. With their co-operation we were able to buy at prices that will enable us to pass on to you at the lowest possible figures, merchandise that speaks for itself.

The goal we are working for is to establish a store here that you will be proud of. We need your help and good-will to this end. We are planning to do everything in our power to acquire it and believe we will be successful.

We hope to give the name of "L. Friedman's Store" wide-spread fame; it is to stand for COURTESY and SERVICE. You will always find a welcome here. Whether you come to look or to buy we shall be glad to see you.

PAY US A VISIT AT YOUR FIRST OPPORTUNITY! IT WILL GIVE US A CHANCE TO GET ACQUAINTED AND BE GOOD FRIENDS.

WEEKLY LETTER FROM DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

By W. F. Bond, Supt.

Jackson, Miss.—More than two hundred leading men and women of the State have volunteered their services as speaker in the campaign now on for Better Schools. State Superintendent T. H. Harris, of Louisiana will also make a few speeches for us during the campaign.

All the teachers of Rankin County, so I understand, have subscribed for the county paper.

At every county teachers' meeting, someone should give a short talk on Physical Education, outlining in a general way the work a teacher should do to help the children to stay well and form such health habits as to enable them to grow up physically strong. The teacher that does not take an intelligent interest in this very important part of our educational work will neglect, perhaps, her greatest opportunity to be of real service to her children. Children with bad tonsils, defective teeth, eye trouble, hook worm and other great hindrances need help.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Result of Tests.

We stated in last week's notes that several tests in English and Latin had been given to the pupils of the High School. All of the papers have been graded, and scored according to instructions sent out by those who have standardized these tests.

In the reading test it was found that Mary Moore Mitchell of the 10th grade had the highest reading score of any High School pupil. Her score was 131, which means that she is 31% above the average child of her age—the average child, of course, is scored 100. Helene Wilkins, also of the 10th grade, had a high score. Her score was 129.

Contest in Sale of Tickets.

The four classes of the High School are now in a contest of selling season tickets for the six football games to be played on the High School grounds. The class selling the most tickets will be given five dollars to be placed in the class treasury.

All people not connected with the school may procure a ticket for $1.50. All connected with the school, for $1.00.

Visitors on Tuesday.

Mrs. Frank Gerard, president of the Parent-Teachers' Association, visited the school Tuesday and spent her time among the different departments. We were glad to have her, and to know that she is so interested in us and our work.

Mr. M. McKibben, Superintendent of Education of Grenada County, spent the day with us Tuesday. We are always ready to receive him, and have him look over our school.

From "Hi Y" to "Reserves."

The National organization of girls' clubs known heretofore as "Girls' Hi Y" has changed its name to "Girls' Reserves." Miss Eva Horner of Jackson, a representative of the "National Girl Reserves" visited our club on Tuesday of this week. She met with the various committees, and instructed and advised about the work for the year. She was both an inspiration and help to the girls who are members of the Grenada Girls Reserves.

High School Faculty Entertained

The members of the High School faculty were most delightfully entertained at the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Brown on Wednesday afternoon, September 29.

First Month Closes This Week.

The tests of the first month's work have been held this week. Consequently teachers and pupils have been very busy—hence this brevity of school news.

CANNED FRUITS TO BE VERY PROMINENT

The North Mississippi Fair Will Show A Bewildering Assortment of Canned Fruits and Vegetables.

A bewildering assortment of canned fruits, pickles, and vegetables will constitute one of the educational exhibits at this year's fair.

What sort of an exhibit would the canning show be without its rows of jars or round-cheeked peaches, shapely pears, delicious strawberries and red plums reposing in their rich syrups, so suggestive of the fruit cellar of childhood days? Plum and apple butter, jams and marmalades of every kind, and glasses of quivering jellies, deep red, purple, and golden yellow complete the picture.

The biggest feature of the entire show will be the vegetables. All of the common garden vegetables, canned by the latest recipes, will be there. The cold pack method of canning vegetables endorsed by specialists everywhere, is proving a popular one with the women, girls and children who are preparing for the exhibit.

Pickles of every variety, big and little cucumber pickles, peach pickles, tomato pickles, pickles made from onions, beans, pears and apples, sweet pickles and sour pickles, pickles of every description will tempt the passerby. Relishes, functioning in the same way, will not be overlooked. The fair is making a big feature of women's work this year. Liberal premiums have been worked out for above named exhibits. A large entry is expected more than ever in any past fairs.

FREE PARKING SPACE AND GUARDS TO PATROL

Jackson, Miss.—Free parking space and guards to patrol the enclosure will be provided for visiting motorists to the Mississippi State Centennial Fair to be held in Jackson October 16-21.

SAVE TIME

It has been said that "Time is the stuff of which life is made." It is certain that the most successful people we have are careful savers of time. Time is the essence of important contracts. A great manufacturing concern says to the billion dollar steel corporation "We will pay you one million dollars for twenty-five thousand tons of your product if delivered at a certain time."

The boy who does not save time usually "scratches a poor man's skin throughout life." That brings us to the point: Why waste time on slow moving remedies? Get a dollar jar of Spivas' One-Night Itch Remedy. "One Night is Right." We believe it is the swiftest acting itch remedy on the market, and we ought to know. We make it. WOMAN WHO KILLED HUSBAND SENT TO ASYLUM

Beulah Hardeman, the negro woman who killed her husband in Grenada about three weeks ago, was formally arraigned Wednesday morning at the court house with the view of getting her carried to the Insane Hospital at Jackson for treatment. The woman became so seriously ill after she was placed in jail that it was found necessary to carry her back to her home pending her recovery. She is still suffering, no doubt in both body and mind, and on the advice of the County health officer, steps were taken to get her to Jackson with the hope that the treatment at the Insane Hospital might bring her around.
